The First Epistle to the Corinthians is the first preserved letter written by the Apostle Paul to the Christian Church in the city of Corinth, Greece. The letter is a personal one from Paul to the Corinthian Church sometime after his missions and church planting work in the city. The letter addresses a variety of moral issues the Corinthian Church was facing and responds to an earlier letter from the Corinthian Church (which in turn may have been a reply to Paul's previous letter) See 1 question about The First Epistle to the Corinthians.
