Child poverty refers to the state of children living in poverty and applies to children from poor families or orphans being raised with limited or—in some cases—absent state resources. Children that fail to meet the minimum acceptable standard of the nation where that child lives are said to be poor. In developing countries, these standards are low and, when combined with the increased number of orphans, the effects are more extreme.