Ideology is a system of ideas and ideals. Earlier philosophy was more systematic and speculative, whereas more modern philosophy in the last 100+ years has been more concerned with linguistic analysis, descriptions of experience, philosophy of mind, critical distinctions in ethical scenarios, etc. Marxist ideology in the stricter sense is not something we choose; it chooses us.