How, When, and why Does Poverty Get Budget Priority?: Uganda Case Study; 2001; Mick Foster, Peter A. Mijumbi; Economic Policy Research Centre, 2001

We’d like to set additional cookies to understand how you use GOV.UK, remember your settings and improve government services. We also use cookies set by other sites to help us deliver content from their services. Accept additional cookies. Abstract. This paper synthesises the key findings from case studies in five countries (Ghana, Malawi, Mozambique, Tanzania and Uganda), each of which examined how public expenditure management has been linked to poverty reduction policy goals. Citation. ODI Working Paper No. 168, London, UK, 70 pp. Links. How, When and Why does Poverty get Budget Priority: Poverty Reduction Strategy and Public Expenditure in Five African Countries. Published 1 January 2002. Contents. Brexit. Check what you need to do. You'll know exactly how much money you earn, how much you can afford to spend each month and how much you need to save. Sure, crunching numbers and keeping track of a budget isn't nearly as much fun as going on a shameless shopping spree. A budget can help you do just that. It's important to build investment contributions into your budget. If you set aside a portion of your earnings each month to contribute to your IRA, 401(k) or other retirement funds, you'll eventually build a nice nest egg. When you get laid off, become sick or injured, go through a divorce, or have a death in the family, it can lead to some serious financial turmoil. Of course, it seems like these emergencies always arise at the worst possible time—when you're already strapped for cash. Beyond budgeting case study 1: the private company. Prickett, Ruth, Financial Management, November 2003, p. 24. Discusses the budget process at Bulmers, a UK cider manufacturer, and the changes proposed to improve that process. Beyond budgeting case study 2: the charity. Prickett, Ruth, Financial Management, November 2003, p. 25. Considers the budgeting process at Sight Savers International, a UK based charity dedicated to combating blindness in developing countries.