Zinabennett.Â Understanding consciousness through holotropic breathwork. If you are interested in the holographic model of the universe and consciousness, then you would like to read this book. The model is largely based on the work of physicist David Bohm and neurophysiologist Karl Pribram.Â The author concludes that human consciousness is an expression and reflections of cosmic intelligence that permeates the entire universe and all existence. We can view consciousness as three distinct levels: the conscious, the subconscious (or preconscious), and the unconscious. Buddhism has a sophisticated theory of mind but has undoubtedly contained... We make use of our conscious mind when we take in input from our senses, analyse the information, and then make decisions based on this information. â€œThe mind is like an iceberg, it floats with one-seventh of its bulk above water.â€ Sigmund Freud. The conscious mind consists of what we are aware of at any given point in time. It includes the things that we are thinking about right now, whether itâ€™s in the front of our minds or the back. If weâ€™re aware of it, then it is in the conscious mind. The Holotropic Mind: The Three Levels of Human Consciousness and How They Shape Our Lives. By Stanislav Grof and Hal Zina Bennett. Download it once and read it on your Kindle device, PC, phones or tablets. The mind, according to Grof, is essentially "holotropic," that is, like a hologram wherein the whole can be reconstructed from a tiny part. The book's first part analyzes memories of life in the womb and the painful process of birth. This is largely a rehash of Grof's Realms of the Human Unconscious ( LJ 7/75, o.p.). The rest of the book is given to a discussion of our "infinite transpersonal consciousness," wherein we can transcend not only the time-space continuum but even visit other dimensions and parallel universes.
